

The Three Little Pigs:

Building a Course that Stands

Meet the Virtual Arkansas Piggies...

Kirsten Wilson

Director of Curriculum and Instruction

Candice McPherson

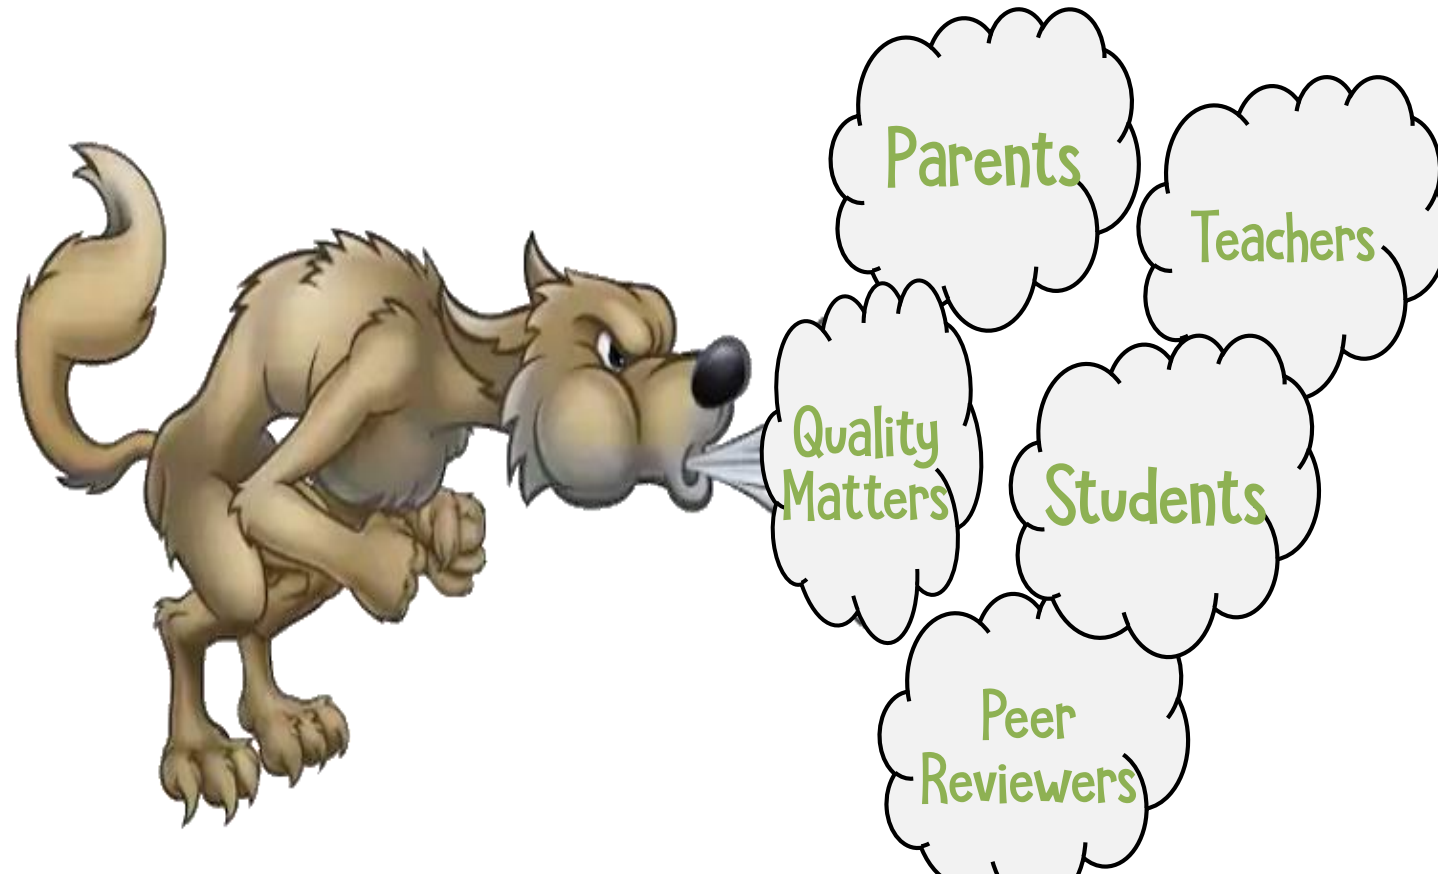

Course Design
Coach

Paula McDougald

Course Design
Specialist

Getting to Know Your Big, Bad Wolf

House of Straw:

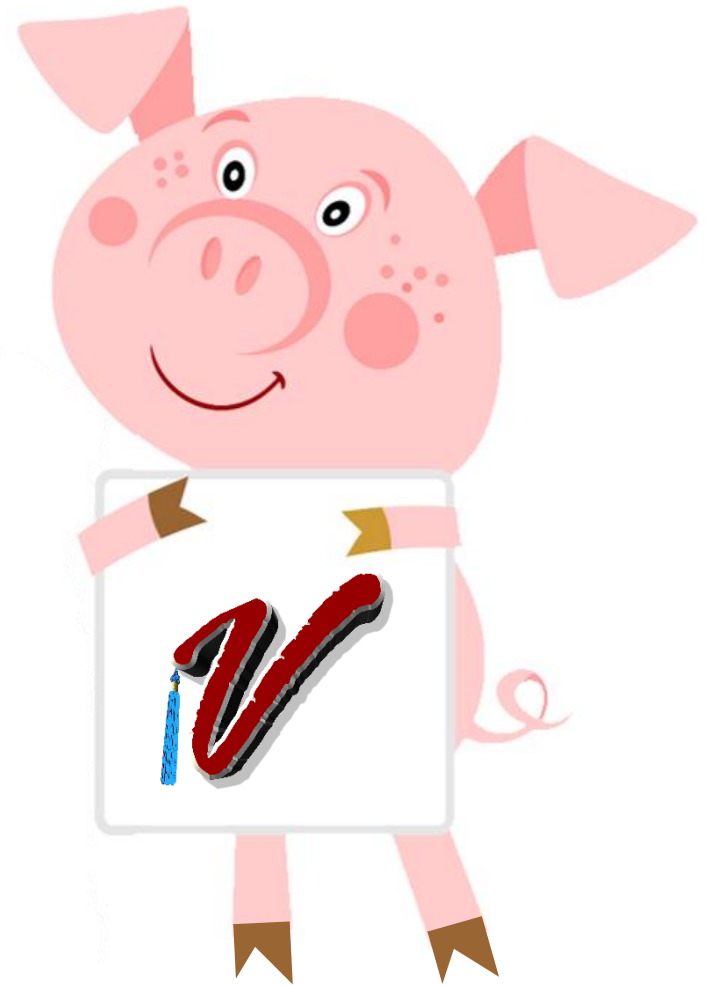

what we used to be

Where is your organization in the process of implementation of QM?

Discussion:

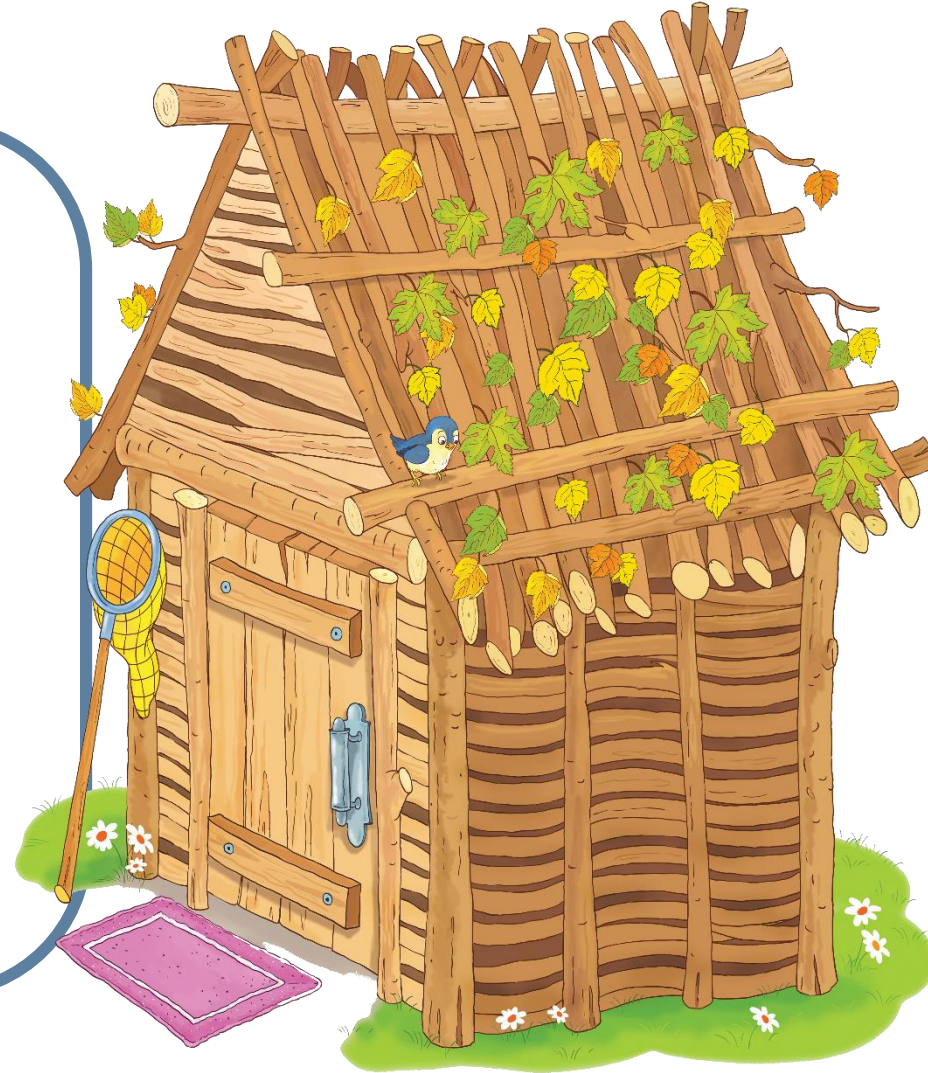

- What parts of your program are taking shape but may be built on a “House of Straw?”
- What questions do you need answers to in order to move forward beyond a “House of Straw?”

House of Sticks:

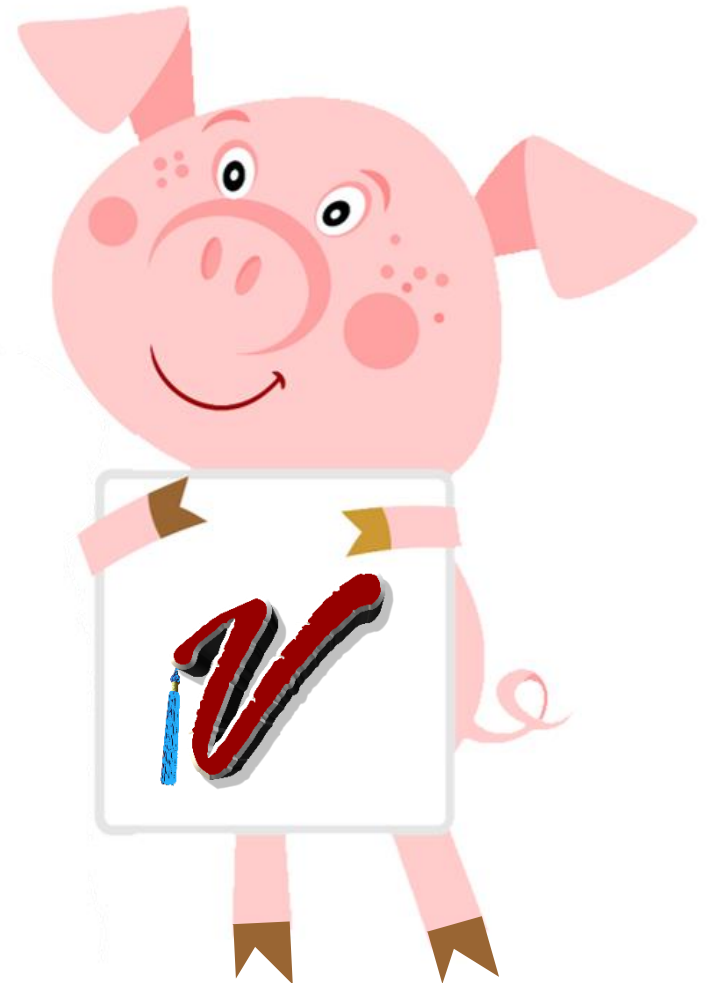

what improved prior to QM

What are some mindsets you notice within your organization that are still approaching online instruction from a “putting out fire” approach?

Discussion:

- What parts of your program are moving forward but may reflect a “House of Sticks?”
- What questions do you need answers to in order to move forward beyond a “House of Sticks?”

House of Bricks:

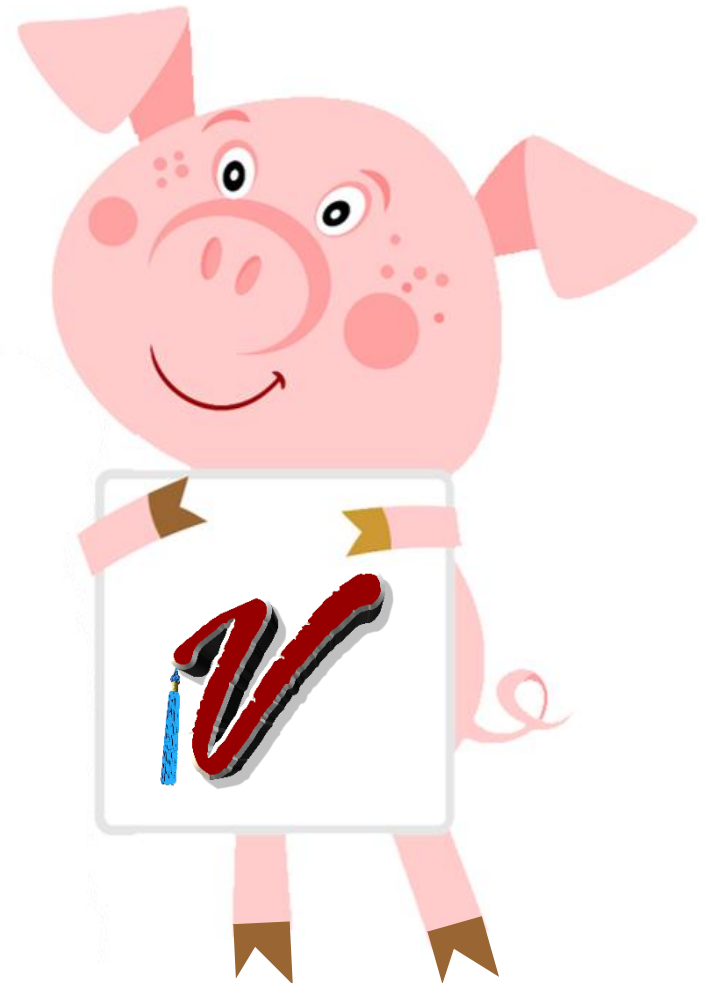

where QM is taking us

What are some foundational steps your organization has made to move toward incorporating the QM K-12 Rubric and the process of QM Course Reviews?

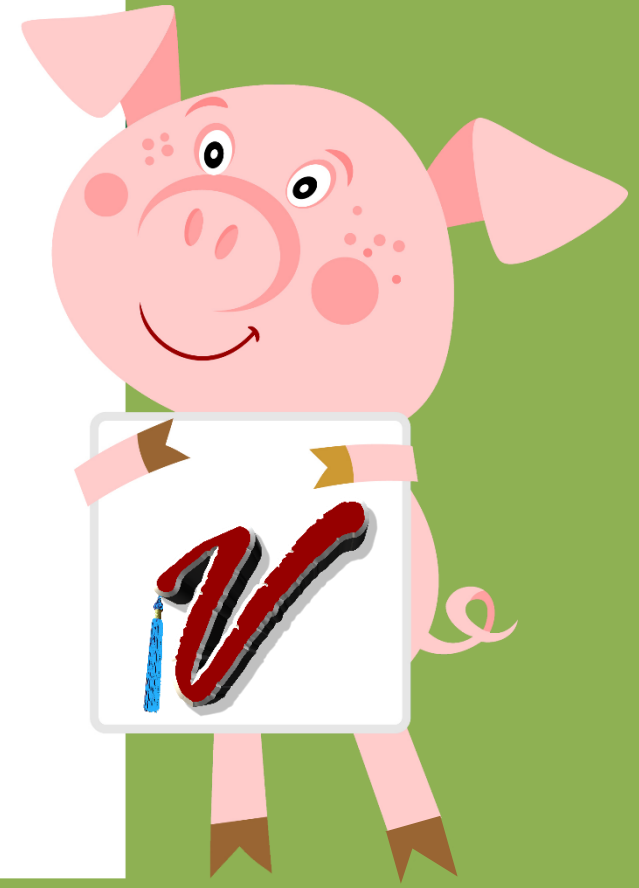

Discussion:

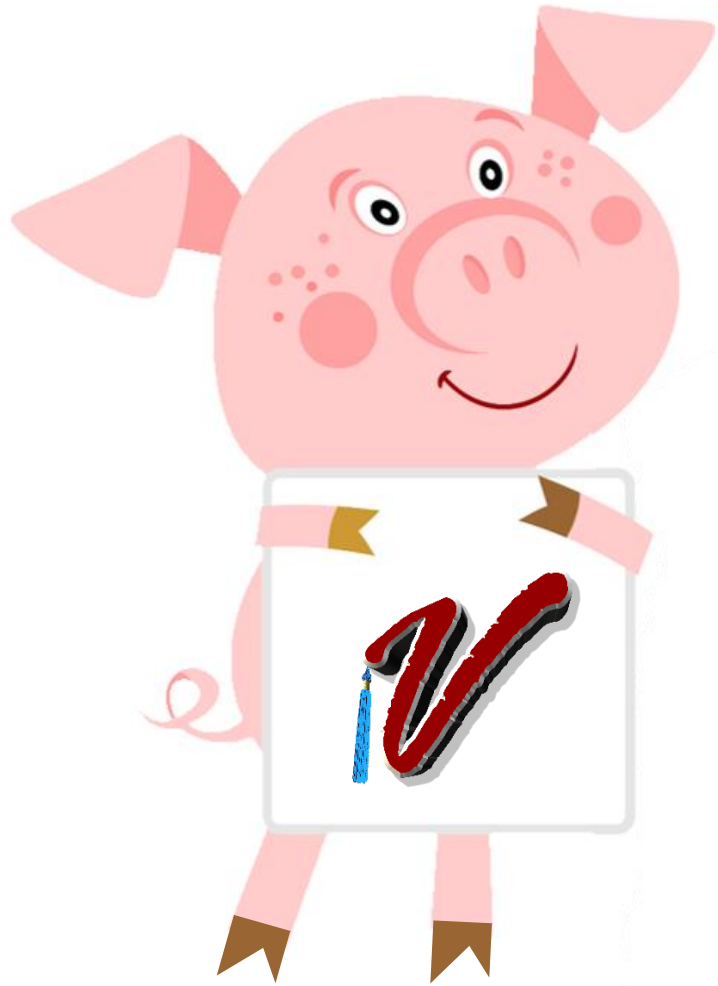

- What parts of your program are moving forward toward a “House of Bricks?”
- What do you identify as your foundational steps toward a “House of Bricks?”
- What do you anticipate to be the maintenance systems of a “House of Bricks?”

The Moral of the Story...

In closing,
let QM be your “big, bad
wolf.” Let it be your ally.
Let it be your rival.

Thank you for attending!

Source for Images:

Shutterstock.com. (2019). Three little pigs. Retrieved from https://www.shutterstock.com/search/three%20little%20pigs?search_source=base_search_form&image_type=all